The stillness of a summer noon Hung o'er us like a spell, As we lingered 'mid the shadows Of that rock-bound mountain dell, And dreamed we heard the chiming Of some old cathedral bell.

We knew 'twas but the rushing Of the Bearcamp's crystal stream. That fell upon our musings, Like the music of a dream ; While through some forest vista We caught the Saco's gleam.

The sun toward the westward, In tropic splendor rolled, And clothed the northern mountains In robes of burnished gold. The glory of those "Granite Hills" By pen can ne'er be told.

Culm Ossippee lay at our feet, And on its surface fell The shadow of each mountain cliff. And tiny twig as well. Within its depths we surely deemed The Naiad queen might dwell.

The purple shadows warned us That night was near at hand, But still we lingered, loth to leave The realms of fairy land, And break the spell thrown over us By some enchanting wand.

And when at length our truant feet The homeward pathway sought, The wonders that His hand hath made Were in our every thought. Beside those good - cornat pure Our noblest works are naught.

A Visit to Montreal.

It was on the second of October 1535, that Jaques Cartier first set his foot on the island of Montreal. at the Indian town of Hochelaga. On beholding the beautiful scenery from the summit of the mountainthe woods, hills, streams and islands -he was struck with such sublimity that he gave the name Mont Royal. which it still retains slightly corrupted. During the three hundred and thirty-nine years that have pas-sed since the landing of Cartier the then Indian village has become a city of no mean importance.

Embracing the opportunity af-forded by an excursion from the States we recently visited Montreal, and propose, by your leave, Mr. Editor, to give your readers a brief sketch of what we saw and heard.

We take the train at-no matter what station-at 2.30 P. M., and are due at Montreal at 10.36 P. M. We occupy a part of the eight hours we must spend in the cars by noting the peculiarities of some of our fel low travelers. Here is a young man at my right, on the opposite side of the car-a symmetrical fellow, with | Constantly on hand a supply of Western and straight forehead, nose and chin, Northern indicative of high culture-one that has seen something of the world, we should judge. In front of us stands a man of about forty years, who makes himself very conspicuous, as he pompously talks with the conductor. He is a large man with the vital temperament predominent, He is filled with self-esteem and has the the clever Soon he takes a seat by the side of a mosdest, timid girl and endeavors to engage her in conversation. She evidently does not wish to make his acquaintance or talk with him, and yet he persists in forcing his company upon her. The young man first mentioned finally takes her to his seat and protects her from further annoyance until she reaches her station. We then form the ac-quaintance of the young man. He tells us that the man from whom he rescued the girl endeavored to induce her to go with him to Montreal. We soon make the acquaintance of another young man who is going to the same place as ourselves and for the same purpose-to see and learn all we could. At about 9 P. M., we reached St.

Johns, over a new line from Newport-the South Eastern Railway of seventy-two mile. Over a part of this road rides the Inspector, who after being told by us that we have no baggage, and then seeing our valises, is very desirous of looking into them, only to find a few articles of wearing apparel. A ride of 28 miles from St. Johns brought us to Montreal at 10,30 P. M., where we tround excellent accommodations at BUCK he American House. The proprie tor, Mr. Clark, is a New Hampshire man, and evidently knows how to run a hotel.

Thankful that we have arrived safely at our journey's end, we lay our wearied head upon the pillow and soon fall into a sound slumber, from which we awoke in the morn ing rested and refreshed, and after breakfast, commence our sight-see ing, of which more anon.

HOW TO STACK SHEAVES OF GRAIN. Unless a stacker is an expert, it will always be better to set a pole firmly in the ground and build the stack around it. A pole in the centre will aid the stacker to carry up his work true; and it will prevent a stack from leaning .-When commencing a stack bottom, the Ohio Farmer says, set up two bundles against each other, and others against these until a circle is formed sloping from centre to circumference, each row half the length of a sheaf further out than the one before it. Carry out the foundation in this way until it is of the desired size, and then at the outside lay a double row of bundles and press them down well. The foundation being now prepared, build upon it by laying the ties of sheaves from the oueside towards the centre, each row lapping butts to bands. Grad-ually lay out until the stack has attained the height desired—that is, let each row of butts project a trifle further than the one beneath, so that the circumference of the stack will gradually draw in until the top is reached. Caution must be used not to make the stack too flaring. We have found it a good plan to let one tier of bundles project some four inches at the point where it is decided to begin drawing in for the top; this furnishes what may be termed eaves. If the stack is to stand an indefinite time before threshing, it will pay to give considerable attention in thatching the top. At all events it should have a topping out of bog grass or hay.

FOR SALE,

One-half of a PEW in the METHODIST L. F. HALE, Adm'r. Bradford, Yt., Jan. 15th, 1874. Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For the relief and cure of all derangements in the stomach, liver, and bowdels. They are a mild aperient, and an excellent purgative. Being purely vegetable, they contain no moreury or mineral whatever. Much serious sickness and suffering is prevented by their timely use; and every family should have them on hand for their protection and relief, when required. Long experience has proved them to be the safest, surest, and best of all the PHIs with which the market abounds. By their occasional use, the blood is purified, the corruptions of the system expelled, obstructions removed, and the whole muchinery of life restored to its healthy activity. Internal organs which become clogged and situalisted into action. Thus inciplent disease is changed into health, the value of which change, where rectoned on the vasts multitudes who emply it, can hardly be computed. Their sugar coating makes them pleasant to take, and preserves their virtues unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are ever fresh, and perfectly reliable. Although scarching, they are mild, and operate without deturbance to the constitution, or det, or occupation.

without deturbance to the constitution, or diet, or occupation
Full directions are given on the wrapper to each box, how to use them as a Famuy Physicand for the following complaints. Which these Pills rapidly cure:—
For Byappasia or radigestion, Listlessness, Languor, and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to atimulate the stomach, and resore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Billous Headache, Sick Headache, Jamidice or Green Sickness, Billious Coli and Billious Pevers, they should be judiciouly taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

cause it.

For Dyantery or Diarrhoa, but one mild dose isgenerally required.

For Rheumatiam, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back, and Loins, they should be continuously take, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints Usappear.

For Drossy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression, a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy. taken, as it produces the desired teach pathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digetion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and howels, restore the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hene it is often advantageous where no serious deangement exists. One who feels tolerably wel, often finds that a dose of those Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleaning and renovating effect on the digestive appearatus.
